Labor Boss Plans To Appeal Verdict

DiSalle Against Censorship Bill In Legislature

Governor Claims Law Would Violate First Amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Michael V. DiSalle has indicated his disapproval of a movie censorship bill now before the Ohio Legislature.

At a news conference Thursday, the governor expressed the belief that "to set up someone to try to act as a censor, to say what a person should see, could be something very well violative of the first amendment of the constitution."

He added that as a matter of principle, he does not like censorship.

"It would be difficult to write a censorship law under the rules laid down by the Ohio Supreme Court," DiSalle told newsmen.

The court nullifed Ohio's movie censorship law in 1954.

"I would advocate strong regulation of the distribution of pornographic literature of any kind," DiSalle said.

Asked if that included movies, he answered: "Certainly."

Announced Committee

The governor announced formation of a Cabinet-level committee to study the problem of regarded children.

"Presently there is no sharpness and no conciseness in handling the problem," DiSalle said. "Each department concerned appers to be going its own way. A dovetailing effort would be superior so that each group dealing with the problem can supplement other efforts."

The committee is composed of Dr. Robert A. Haines, director of mental hygiene and correction; Dr. Ralph Dwork, health director; Dr. E. E. Holt, superintendent of public instruction; Mary Gorman, welfare director, and James Tichenor, unemployment compensation administrator.

Of the fair employment practices (FEP) bill now before the lawmakers, DiSalle said: "I would have no objection to inserting the right of trial by jury (for those accused of violating the proposed law:. Any time a possible sentence of an individual is involved, a trial by jury would not be harmful to the process of law."

The governor added: "If a hearing were to be held before the full FEP commission, I feel it should be open to the press and public."

The Democratic-controll Senate has refused to accept Republican amendments to open the hearing.

Macmillan to Meet Khrushchev

Soviets Chill Idea Of Big Four Talks

LONDON (AP)—The Soviets today gave a chilly reception to Western proposals for a Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany but still left the door open to direct negotiations.

An English-language commentator on Moscow radio said the Western notes handed the Kremlin Monday, "do not contain a single more or less constructive suggestion capable of facilitating settlement of questions either of Berlin or of Germany. It all boils down to the same invariable 'no' the West has been giving us all the time," the broadcaster said.

The belief grew in the West that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would press for Big Four summit talks—rather than a foreign ministers meeting—when he receives British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan this weekend.

Emerging As Coordinator

With U.S. Secretary of State Dulles ailing, the suave, British premier appeared emerging as the coordinator of Allied policy in dealing with the Soviets. He told the House of Commons Thursday night that after his talks with the Soviet leaders, he would visit Bonn and Paris and "perhaps Washington with a view to formation of the Western allied policy."

Macmillan leaves for Moscow Saturday to spend 10 days sounding out Soviet leaders on possible grounds for a compromise in the cold war. He is especially anxious to find out what Western concessions the Kremlin is really angling for—without making any commitments on behalf of the Allies.

"We must be firm but flexible," he told Commons.

Macmillan emphasized that any proposal by Khrushchev for disbandment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was out of the question.

"Nothing must be done which would result in the withdrawal of American and Canadian forces from the continent of Europe," he said. "Within that, nothing ought to be excluded."

Red Premier Eyes Approval Of 'Freedom'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev apparently intends to press the Western powers hard in forthcoming talks to accept the present Communist rule of the countries of Eastern Europe.

U.S. officials said today that seems to be the significance of a blunt, little noticed section of a speech covering foreign policy issues which Khrushchev made Tuesday at Tula, a city south of Moscow.

Although Eastern European countries long have been under Western powers have taken the line that Poland and Czechoslovakia, for instance, would some day gain freedom from what the West denounces as Communist tyranny.

Analyzing Speech

Authorities have been analyzing the Tula speech here and in other Western capitals for clues to Khrushchev's immediate and long-range objectives in his campaign against continued Western occupation of West Berlin. They expect much better information on his purposes after his talks this weekend with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Khrushchev's Tula speech was regarded by experts in the State Department as taking a very tough line. He specifically warned the Western powers that if they tried to shoot their way to Berlin it would mean war.

Work to Start Soon On Kaiser Plant Expansion

Chemicals Division To Spend $750,000 At Columbiana

Both interior and exterior expansions will result from a $750,000 improvement program announced by the Kaiser Chemicals Division for its basic refractories plant at nearby Columbiana.

The company will spend $750,000 in new construction and equipment said Frank M. Cashin, vice president.

The expansion will include additional 750-ton presses for forming brick, auxiliary materials handling equipment, a new tunnel brick kiln, and raw materials storages (silos) at the rear of the existing building.

Contracts for the work are expected to be let momentarily. The expansion will be completed late this year.

Kaiser Chemicals, a division of the Kaiser Auminum and Chemical Corp., built its $5 million Columbiana plant in 1956 and has since expanded. It now employs about 160 persons.

Cashin said the expansion is a result of increased demand in the Eastern and Midwestern markets for the Division's products.

"These additional facilities will give us the capacity to produce a greater voume and variety of products to satisfy the rising demand for basic refractories, particuarly for use in the all-basic open hearth steel furnace," Mr. Cashin said.

Basic refractories are materials which are used to line high temperance furnaces and kilns. Principal users are the steel, glass, cement and copper industries.

Bliss Plant Is Toured by Local Group

The local plant of the E. W. Bliss Co., manufacturer of rolling mills for use in industry, was toured on Thursday afternoon by members of the Salem Area Development Council and the Salem Area Chamber of Commerce.

The plant tours, under the direction of Gail Herron, are being made to survey all area industry.

George Baillie Jr., sales manager of the Salem division, conducted the tour which was attended by: Gail Herron, Walter J. Hunston, Arthur Johnson, Oliver Duke, Eldon Groves, Howard Firestone, Walter Null, Wayne T. Darling, Archie Bricker, George Rogers, Mayor Harold D. Smith, Aubrey Hayes and Norman Houger.

E. W. Bliss Co. came to Salem in 1920 and took over the facilities which formerly housed the Buckeye Engine Co. A number of former Buckeye employes are still working for the Bliss firm.

E. W. Bliss has plants throughout the United States, as well as in Darby, England and Paris, France.

CITY HALL TO CLOSE

City hall offices will be closed Monday in the legal observance of Washington's birthday, Mayor Harold D. Smith reported today. Only the police and fire departments will maintain normal working hours, he said.

British Troops Quiet Turkish Cypriot Students

Greeks Parade in Celebration of London Conference

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Turkish Cypriot school children demonstrated noisily today against the agreement to bring independence to Cyprus. British troops were called out to prevent disorders.

Greek Cypriot students in the port of Paphos paraded in celebration of the successful conclusion of the London conference. There were a few celebrations in other towns but Cypriots generally assumed a cautious wait-and-see attitude.

The student demonstrators were dispersed without incident. Soldiers patrolled the border between the Greek and Turkish sectors of the capital.

During the demonstration, Turkish children chanted: "Death to Makarios" (Greek Cypriot leader and archbishop) and "partition or death."

The exiled archbishop is expected to become the republic's first president when independence arrivs in about a year.

Has Announced Plans

Makarios has announced he plans to return to Cyprus in a few days. He came here from Athens for the Londan conference. He was confined to his hotel suite with a chill today.

There was more general enthusiasm among the British at the prospect of shedding the ancient Mediterranean island than among the people they have ruled for 81 years.

But in the capital for hours tnere was a restrained — almost ominous—feeling broken only this morning by a demonstration of young Turkish Cypriot students shouting the Turkish community's old cry for "partition or death."

Crowd Paraded

The orderly crowd of 2,000 teenagers paraded around Ataturk Square in the Turkish sector carrying placards reading "We will not accept a muderer for our president."

The slogans were an obvious reference to Archbishop Makarios, leader of the 400,000 Greek Cypriots who has often been denounced by the 100,000 Turkish minority on the island. Makarios appears certain to be the first president when the republic comes into being.

All Turkish schools in the capital were closed.

In the west coast port of Paphos more than 1,000 students stayed away from classes to celebrate.

Most of the newspapers in Nicosia carried the news that the pact drafted in Zurich had been approved at the London conference without editorial comment. But the left-wing Haravgi was sharply critical, saying "under choking pressure of threats and ultimatums Makarios was forced to initial Zurich agreement." The Communists were angry that Britain would keep her military bases on the island.

Beck Convicted Of Tax Evasion By U.S. Court

Ex-Teamsters Chief To Be Sentenced On Next Friday

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Convicted of cheating on his income tax, millionaire labor leader Dave Beck Sr., 64, spent time behind bars for the first time in his life Thursday night.

The former president of the huge Teamsters Union was found guilty on all four counts of income tax evasion—covering $240,067 for the years 1950-53 — and two counts of filing false returns. He could receive up to a five-year sentence and a $10,000 fine on each count.

U.S. Dist. Judge George Boldt, who set sentencing for Feb. 27, was to hold an appeal bond hearing in Seattle today.

Beck's lawyers said the verdict would be appealed "all the way."

The one-time laundry truck driver, who prided himself on not smoking or drinking, appeared more shaken at having to spend the night in jail than by the verdict.

Showed Little Emotion

The portly Beck, nattily clad in a blue suit and polka dot tie, gripped the edge of a table but showed little emotion as the clerk drawled "guilty" six times Thursday afternoon. Later he was heard to remark to a friend he just couldn't understand why he had to remain in jail.

When found guilty, his $25,000 bail was revoked.

New Cold Wave Sends Mercury Tumbling

Salem residents, after enjoying last week's spring-like weather, found themselves in the deep freeze again last night.

The return of cold weather in the past few days sent the mercury plummeting to 15 degrees below zero here early this morning, according to readings taken at the city sewage plant. It was "warmer" in the city proper, however

It was 12 at noon yesterday but by 6 p.m. the mercury had fallen to zero. Today at noon the thermometers registered 7 degrees.

Residential Blazes Checked By Firemen

A total of three fire calls were reported to city firemen during the past two days which totaled $550 in damages, Fire Chief Clarence Wright said today.

Firemen were called to the home of H. H. Paulin, 466 W. 5th St., at 5:38 p.m. Thursday where an overheated coal-fired furnace caused $500 in damages.

Mr. Paulin discovered the fire when he returned home.

Chief Wright said the loss was covered by insurance.

Damage estimated at $50 was caused to the Russell Baughman home at MC 1, Salem, this morning at 9:27 when a defective flue caused a fire.

It was Salem's fourth residence fire in five days.

Firemen answered an alarm at the Allied Finishers Co. at 135 S. Howard Ave. at 9:53 p.m. Thursday when steam blown out of the building by an exhaust fan caused a fire scare.

'More Reliable Facilities' Requested

Federal Aviation Group Probes Near-Collisions

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency has launched an investigation into three near-collisions between military and civilian craft this week.

Two of the incidents were reported Thursday. A total of 74 passengers were involved in all three.

Meanwhile, the Air Force called for "more reliable facilities" for all aircraft traffic control.

A Capital Airlines pilot reported Thursday his plane dived to avoid a B47 jet bomber 30 miles northeast of here.

On the same day an American Airlines plane reported narrowly missing a Navy trainer near Indianapolis.

Last Tuesday, Eastern Air Lines reported one of its planes had to evade a B47 near Chattanooga, Tenn. Three of its 17 passengers were hospitalized.

Capital pilot Robert Spink said he was flying at 19,000 feet under ground traffic guidance. The B47, commanded by Maj. George R. Erks, was on a training mission from Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

The Air Force said the B47 was under visual flight rules and that civilian air controllers had been notified of the bombers in the Charlotte area.

Capital Airlines said its planes

$36 In Cash Stolen

Burglars Break Open Safe at United School

Burglars entered United School between 11:30 p.m. Thursday and 6:45 a.m. today, broke open a large safe in the office of Superintendent Dale Gates and took $33, Columbiana County deputies report.

An additional $3 was stolen from a pencil machine in the office of Frank Solak, principal.

The burgary was discovered by custodian Robert Ernst at 6:45 a.m. today after he noticed the glass in the door of the superintendent's office was broken.

Deputy Sheriff James Miller said the burglars entered the building through the door at the northwest corner of the building.

He said he believes three or more persons were involved because at least three sets of tracks were discovered in the snow. He said the tracks appeared to have been made by persons running away from the building.

The burglars laid the safe on its back and used a sharp implement such as an axe or pick to literaly rip it open, Miler said.

He said the thieves took nothing but cash. They did not disturb several sizable checks that were in the safe nor a small check that was in the pencil machine.

Storeroom Rented For Food Program

COLUMBIANA—County commissioners have rented a 28 by 28 foot storeroom on W. Railroad St. in Columbiana formerly used by the Columbiana County Farm Bureau, Robert Bycroft, county welfare director, reports.

The room will be used for distribution of surpus food in the county. The rent will be $75 a month. Henry Keck of Columbiana is the owner.

Shelves and counters will be installed, Bycroft said, after which an inspector from the state will be called to check the facilities and approve the storage space.

The commissioners have already purchased a deep freeze for the program.

The surplus food program is expected to get underway in April.

Extended Area Phone Service Troubles Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Extended-area service has become a concern of many Ohioans and the telephone companies that serve them.

It also has become a concern of the State Utilities Commission, which intends to do something about it Monday.

Extended-area service is a between-companies (or sometimes within a single company) service which permits subscribers at one telephone exchange area to place calls to, and receive calls from, one or more other exchanges — without paying a toll for each call. Instead, a flat monthly rate usually is charged.

More and more telephone users, especially those in and around the state's smaller communities, have asked the commission to require their phone companies to offer extended-area service.

On top of that, the commission thinks Ohio's telephone industry needs a reasonably uniform standard as a basis for determining if extended area service should be started.

So it has come up with an administrative order which it proposed to put into effect unless serious objections are raised. And that's what the commission is going to do Monday—conduct a hearing to hear representatives of the state's telephone companies spokesmen for interested groups such as farmers, and anyone else who has anything to say.

It's not expected to be a very long session, because the subject was pretty well aired at an informal session Feb. 3.

Chinese Communist Commune One Step Ahead of Russians

Editor's Note — Life in a Chinese people's commune is organized to the last detail, and production is rationalized, but what happens to the individual? Dr. Sripati Chandrasekhar tells about the strange social experiment he studied first-hand during his travels in Red China. This is the fourth of five articles on his trip.

by Dr. Sripati Chandrasekhar
Copyright, 1959,
By The Associated Press

Communist Chinese officials are very proud of their latest development in agricultural production and ownership, the communes, for here they have gone one step beyond the Soviet Union.

During my six-week trip through Red China, I visited four communes. The one which was best organized from the official point of view—a kind of showpiece—appeared to control every conceivable aspect of human life from morning to night, from birth to death.

The Chili Yin people's commune is located about 80 miles north of Chingchow in Honan Province.

This commune was to set the pattern for the whole country and was organized in the upsurge of the "big leap forward" in agriculture.

Chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Chinese Communist party happened to visit this place to see the agricultural cooperatives and all the peasants met him and declared they wanted real communism. But the cadres (the officials) were lukewarm.

Mao agreed with the peasants on the need for communes and pointed out that they were more progressive than their officials. And the next day, July 20, 1958, the people's commune came into being. That's what the director told me.

This commune was made up of 68 villages. The houses, the land, the implements, the cottage industries and the kitchen utensils were all owned by the commune. It also owned and ran a few iron smelters (steel production is becoming a cottage industry), repairing mills, wheat flour mills, tailors establishments, tile and brick kilns, fertilizer plants, etc.

The commune managed 228 pubic canteens where all adults ate in hotel-type dining halls. There were 135 public nurseries where babies from a week to four years old were taken care of. There were 130 kindgartens where chidrn from 4 to 6 years old were housed and taught.

There were also two middle schools where 1,450 students between 7 and 18 years received some instruction. There were 36 Red and expert schools, Socialist, professional and technical schools.

The commune also ran two large rural hospitals with 14 outpatient departments which administered traditional Chinese medicine like herbs and skin puncture. The adult population was distributed over 146 productive teams to work in rice, vegetable and cotton fields, small industries, canteens, public nurseries, schools, hospitals and so on.

All the village houses were owned by the commune, and there was not an empty room anywhere.

I visited two of the 24 "happy homes for the aged." The old people were housed in former landlords' homes. They were in 65-70 age group and appeared to be happy.

What is the working day like in this commune?

Men and women wake up in the morning to the blare of loudspeakers in the streets. After half an hour of exercise in the open air—there is tremendous emphasis on physical fitness—they go off to the canteens for a communal breakfast.

Then they break up to form different production teams based on the individual's ability and aptitude for work. Husbands and wives, parents and grown-up children are not necessarily on the same team.

The teams go off to their allotted tasks in the fields and factories. They reassemble at noon in the various canteens for a simple lunch of rice, cabbage and sweet potato and occasionally a little pork. Lunch over, they march off again to their appointed tasks.

Next: The 16 guarantees.

1. Locate forecast wind velocity on top line (closest number). 2. Look down column to number closest to the forecast temperature. 3. Follow line across to column at extreme right for "true temperature."

"It isn't the cold, it's the velocity" might well become a standard saying about wintry weather to match that old heat-humidity cliche for summer. For according to the U.S. Army Medical Service, a brisk wind can make a cold day really frigid.

Table above is based on the Army's wind-temperature chart. A little practice with it will aid in making the outlook on a winter day even bleaker.

For example, a forecast of 35 degrees (Fahrenheit) and 20-mile-an-hour winds add up to the equivalent of 38 degrees below zero as far as exposed portions of the anatomy are concerned (the same as being in a windless deep freeze at that temperature.)

Experts Eye Big Increase in Space Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Costs of the nation's future civilian space programs will orbit at sky-high levels of billions of dollars, experts say.

A few of the price tags:

Booster program for rocket motors—more than two billion dollars.

Manned space-flight program — 200 million dollars.

Efforts to build a 1½ million-pound thrust engine of a single chamber—200 million dollars.

The costs were listed Thursday by National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials appearing before a Senate space subcommittee.

NASA and its companion military agency in the Pentagon, the Advanced Research Projects Agency, are spending 450,500 million dollars this year and will need 800 millions or more next year, testimony showed.

And Dr. T. Keith Glenna, NASA head, added:

Don't be surprised if NASA alone costs a billion or more a year after two years.

Space program costs this year and next will be propelled by the planned launching of 30 satellites and some 140 probing rockets, Glennan said.

On the plus side of the space ledger, Glennan said experts estimate the value of advances in meteorology and communications stemming from the satellite progra will be in the billions of dollars.

Latest Developments in Unusual Aircraft May Soon Make Flying Saucer Watching a Thing of the Past

Although they don't too closely resemble the classic flying saucer, the aircraft pictured above are UFO's ("unusual" flying objects) in their own right. Left, now undergoing flight tests is the "Sky-Car," which combines the utility of a workhorse Army vehicle with the characteristics of a helicopter. In its first flight, the machine rose vertically on two columns of air and hovered under its own power. Two small horizontal propellers in the body provide both lift and forward movement. It is built by Piasecki Aircraft Corp. of Philadelphia, Pa. A four-passenger civilian model is in development. The "Vertiplane," right, blends the best features of a helicopter with those of a conventional airplane. As its name suggests, it is capable of taking off straight up, but can fly forward at much greater speeds than a helicopter. Designed by Ryan Aeronautical Co. of San Diego, Calif., the craft features a unique system of retractable wing flaps. The Vertiplane recently suffered severe damage in a crash while attempting a power-off landing during a test for the Army.

Guarding Your Health

Questions and Answers

Q — I am pregnant and my doctor advised me to go on a diet, as he claims I am gaining too much weight. Why is this so important?

A — Adding too much weight during pregnancy increases the risks, both to mother and child. Indeed. the hazards of too much gain of weight in pregnancy are so great that a number of leading obstetricians simply refuse to take responsibility for the care of a pregnant woman unless she restricts her weight gain to what the doctor believes is safe.

Q — Please say something about a chalazion.

A — This is a small kind of tumor on the eyelid formed by distension of one of the glands which has retained secretion. If it cannot be cured by medical means, simple surgery may be indicated.

Q — I have never seen an article on bad breath, or halitosis. Will you say something about this?

A — As a matter of fact, I have written on this subject frequently. To be considered are: local conditions around the mouth or throat, such as pyorrhea; foods whose odors are eliminated through the breathing apparatus, such as onions or garlic; infections in the lungs or sinuses; and digestive disturbances.

Q — What causes people to become ill from homesickness?

A — Perhaps this name is faulty, inasmuch as there does not appear to be a physical "sickness" involved. However, homesickness is certainly real and is a form of loneliness for the peopl eand environment to which one has long been accustomed.

Occasionally, a person who is homesick is so unhappy that the appetite suffers and loss of weight occurs, or there may be spells of sleeplessness. In the abence of ability to return to the home, time appear to be the best healer.

Q — Is there any benefit to be obtained by eating egg shells? I had in mind the problem of soft teeth or nails.

A — Egg shells contain calcium and consequently might be beneficial in supplying this element if its lack in the diet is responsible for more tasty form in milk, cheese and other foods. It can also be obtained in easy-to-take tablets.

The Big Political Twisteroo

The shiftiest trick in politics is to make people watch the tip of the magic wand while the white rabbit is smuggled into the hat from which the magician will produce it a few seconds later.

The white rabbit in 1959 is a budget-busting schedule of federal spending with no extra taxation involved — a cost-free ride on the federal gravy train. It was droppd into the hat unobtrusively this week when the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee promised there would be no new taxes.

The chairman is Democrat Wilbur Mills of Kensett, Ark., who has piled up enough seniority since he was elected the first time in the late '30s to become head of the only congressional committee that can originate tax legislation. The Democrats — and the Spendocrats — now have official clearance for an irresponsible spending spree.

This completes the pattern for the big political twisteroo of 1959. While the spenders —both Democrats and Republicans — scream about the things America desperately needs, from missiles to meringue, taxers will sit tight. Whatever is spent in excess of the presidential budget estimate of a paper-thin surplus of 70 million dollars to cover spending of a little more than 77 billion will go on the cuff.

Spenders will not ask for nor get any new taxation. They will hammer on the theme that the United States needs billions in new spending, but they will not utter a peep about paying for it. This is the twisteroo that has been fooling the American people for half a generation. It is the essence of giveaway government — the spend-and-spend-and-elect-and-elect formula bequeathed to politicians by the late Harry Hopkins.

As Hopkins also pointed out, "the American people are too damned dumb to know what's good for them." Amended, that would read, in 1959: "The American people are too damned dumb to know what's bad for them."

They need more additions to the national debt like they need the gravy the Spendocrats can hardly wait to ladle out to them —free. And why not? The Spendocrats don't intend to pay for it.

One Born Every Minute

The next time you drive across a bridge or alongside a stream and see one or more men or women bearing fish poles at this time of year, give a thought to suckers:

That is what the pole bearers are thinking about -- suckers that live in the chilly, muddy waters of half-flooded streams and are ready to bite on anything they find on the clean-swept bottoms of the pools where they hang out.

The oddity is that suckers are not highly prized for anything but catching; they are not game fish; they are not protected by law. They are full of bones, and they don't have much fight in them. True, they are edible, though incredibly bony, but that is not why they are fished for this early in the year.

A sucker fisherman wants to build a snug fire on a wet bank in a sheltered place and start his bucolic meditations early. He is tired of central heating and TV commercials. He yearns for the reassurance of birds in motion in the sky and the first sight of a willow turning color. He wants to renew his acquaintance with the outdoors He is like the baseball fan who wants to be first in line at the ticket window.

Take a look at the sucker fisherman — an appreciative look. As sportsmen go, he is something special. What he seeks is worth the seeking — the raw wind, the bad footing, the chill and even the bones he must be careful to keep out of his throat. To him alone there is comfort in the adage that there's a sucker born every minute. Otherwise, there would be no suckers and no excuse to go fishing in February.

We Owe Ourselves Confidence, Too

Franklin D. Roosevelt, trying to explain the philosophy of deficit financing in his time, said the national debt was "money we owe ourselves."

Therefore, according to the philosophy of government spending that had been taken up by disciples of the British economist, John Maynard Keynes, there was no reason to feel handicapped by old-fashioned rules about balancing income and outgo in any particular year.

The government possessed and should use the authority to plunge into debt, in order to stimulate the national economy, the Keynesians argued. But the other part of their argument was ignored in the United States.

KYNES HELD that autority to go into debt should be used only when the national econom needed to be stimulated; that the debt should be retired when no further stimulation was needed.

In the hands of U.S. politicians, Keynesian spending turned into a year-in-and-year out habit—a kind of economic drug addiction. Instead of tapering off when the economic pain had subsided, American politicians simply kept spending more and more, because their addiction to spending had become as much of a disease as the recession that started the addiction in the first place.

This is the problem today—spending addiction.

When Franklin Roosevelt said it was safe and proper to pile up public debt because it was "money we owe ourselves," he had no idea the sum would grow so large. In the first 10 years of the New Deal, the national debt climbed from approximately 22 billion dollars to 40 billion at the outbreak of World War II in 1939 and went over 200 billion by 1944. Its authorized limit now is 288 billion and will have to be lifted again this year.

The "money we owe ourselves" finally has loomed so large that investors are beginning to lick their lips when they think about it.

THE KEYNESIAN philosophy has backfired in the United States. Spending now is being advocated for its own sake. The admirers of Keynes have changed their loyalty and now are admirers of spending for spending's sake. The "money they owe themselves" is not going to be repaid unless they snap out of their trance.

They are neglecting the "confidence they owe themselves in their own money." "Money after all, has no intrinsic value. It is merely a way to keep track of the confidence that the American people and their international neighbors must have in the value it represents as a token or responsibility.

John Maynard Keynes had a big idea. But he must be turning in his grave over its abuse by political prodigals who cannot understand why "money we owe ourselves" must be backed up with confidence in its value; i.e., in the ability of the government to live within its income.

Once Over

New York, with some other cities, may get off-track betting rooms to help solve debt problems. Support is split. But if they get them, the following laments are certain:

DEAR MAYOR: You are always emphasizing a promise to do right by the voters. I haven't had a winner in your administration's horse rooms. Play fair.—Joe X.

MR BURGOMASTER: I firmly believed your speeches. How come that under your regime my daily-double luck has been worse than ever?—Argus B.

GOV. ROCKEFELLER: I voted for you to give me good government. I will now settle if you will give me a good horse.—Citizen.

DEAR MAYOR: The long walks at the racetracks gave me fallen arches. Thanks to horse rooms, my dogs are improved, only old foot now gives me trouble. But my limping is more noticeable. Kindly take this up with the City Council.—Gus Q.

DEAR BOB: Horse parlors do not televise races. Unless you put in TV sets I am going over to Republicans. (Also I now get home to dinner on time and the wife can't readjust herself to it. Please do something about this.)—Jason.

Kaiser's Confidence

The Kaiser Chemical Corporation's announcement of a new expansion at its basic refractories plant at neighboring Columbiana is evidence of the company's faith in the future of the growing northeastern Ohio industrial district.

Kaiser plans call for a $750,000 improvement to its modern facilities just west of Columbiana where basic refractories for use in steel mills are manufactured. The company's payroll has climbed to 160 persons from the small staff that was employed after the plant was built in 1956.

Kaiser Chemical is well satisfied with its decision to establish the refractories plant in this area, close to its markets. Business has been good and the general economy in the district strengthened.

Kaiser's venture is a good example for other businesses seeking strategic plant sites. The Salem area has much to offer.

By H. I. Phillips

SENATOR: The horse parlors have no place where I can get a hotdog, a chicken wing, a bowl of soup or a glass of beer. Do you call this good government? I call for a constitutional amendment giving all indoor horse players the comfort in these city betting places that is found outdoors. Why are you playing "Democracy" to show instead of across the board?—Voter.

A MAN BOUGHT an old auto for $67 and found $38,000 buried in upholstery. Well, they put better stuff into autos in the old days.

The governors of Connecticut, New York and New Jersey met with the mayor of Gotham on the commuter problem. They got to the meeting on time through lucky decision not to come by train.

If any frontier marshals had behaved as their impersonators do in "westerns" the old west would today be wilder than ever.

Murder and mayhem in the "entertainment" business took a jolt with the closing of a Lizzie Borden hatchet murder drama after two performances. This one, "Legend of Lizzie" written around grizzly killing of father and stepmother by well-bred daughter, met its end so fast it outdid the original Fall River forty-whacks crime.

The Only Bridge to a Brighter Tomorrow

Behind the Missile Fight

By PERRY BENNETT

Behind the congressional battle over U.S. missile progress is a White House-Pentagon gamble on "leaping a generation" in the development of space-age weapons.

The stakes are high.

If the gamble pays off, the administration says the nation will have within four years an arsenal of solid-fueled Minuteman missiles — quick-firing, mobile, accurate and relatively inexpensive.

No Minuteman missile has been tested yet. Administration critics say, therefore, that the planned reliance on the Minutemen will leave the U.S. dangerously behind Russia in the number of operational, liquid-fueled missiles for the next three years.

No one argues, however, that the "second generation" Minutemen will be vastly superior weapons to the "first generation" liquid-fueled Thors, Atlases and Titans now in production and under development, and to the air-breathing guided missiles, like the Bomarc, which are highly-refined pilotless bombers.

The greatest advantage of the Minutemen-which will include short range, medium range and intercontinental models — will be their quick firing. At the first radar report of Russian ICBMs headed for the U.S., keys could be turned sending the Minutemen ICBSs on their way almost instantaneously.

The quickest firing time for liquid-fueled Thors and Atlases would be about 15 minutes. This is because the highly unstable combination of liquid oxygen and kerosene that powers them must be pumped in immediately before firing.

Seometime before the 5,500-mile Minuteman is operational, the U.S. will have 150 intermediate range Thor and 200 Atlas and Titan ICBMs installed for firing. But conceivably, many of the IRBMs now being delivered to bases in Britain, and the ICBMs, which will be based in the U.S , could e destroyed on the ground by well-placed Russian missiles.

The Pentagon argues, however, that it is unlikely the Russians could destroy all the U.S. retaliatory power in one blow, since there are the B-47 and B-52 jet bombers also ready to strike. The even-faster B-58 is coming off the production lines now and the first 2,000-mile-an-hour B-70 is under construction.

Almost as revolutionary as the Minuteman's capacity for instantaneous firing is its relatively low cost. The price of each is expected to be about one million dollars, as opposed to 10 million dollars each for an Atlas or Titan. These figures include the cost of the missile itself and the ground support (constructing underground storage tanks, wages of crewmen, etc.) for one year.

THE RELATIVELY simple Minutemen will require about a 20-man crew for each squadron to fire them from their under-ground concrete site. The liquid fueled missiles need the services of several hundred skilled maintenance and launching specialists.

Since the Minuteman will be smaller—60 feet to the 80 foot Atlas and 90-foot Titan—and less powerful, it will not carry as big a warhead. But some Air Force sources are talking about a fleet of 1,500 to 4,000 Minutemen.

The problem of whether to go all-out on production of the liquid-fueled ICBMs, or gamble on the more sophisticated and efficient, solid-fueled Minuteman parallels almost exactly the problem facing the government a decade ago.

THE WEAPON in production then was the piston-driven B-36, a giant but slow nuclear bomber that cost 3.5 million dollars. Already flight-tested, but not available in quantity was the B-47 jet medium bomber, that cost 1.9 million.

The decision to be made then was: should we spend millions on an expensive plane we knew already was obsolete or gamble that the Russians wouldn't strike until the cheaper B-47 was operational.

After a lengthy congressional hassle, the B-36s were built. They're now being scrapped.

This time the decision was to gamble.

Purely Personal

By TRUMAN TWILL

If our most vexing public problem is the proportion of personal and corporate income that should be rendered unto Caesar, the simplest rule of thumb for solving it would be for each taxpayer to decide what he is willing to yield and how it should be split up. If this were done honestly, it would be plain that all taxpayers expect vastly more than they are willing to pay for. They'd have to put up or shut up.

I wonder if everybody has the same trouble, or if there's something wrong with the way I lick stamps. Whenever I affix a number of stamps, waiting until I have a pile of envelopes before pounding the stamps into place, the first stamps have curled up and broken loose, apparently because the glue was too thin.

Apparently there is widespread confusion over the meaning of the expression "to hold a tight rein," because as often as not it is written "tight rein." The expression is from horse driving and the word is spelled "rein," though it may have been derived from "reign" in the distant past.

Business-boosters in the Deep South should pool their resources to buy up all the chain gang movies that were made in the '30s and now are being shown on television at a most inopportune time.

It is my observation that most people would rather take a beating than think for themselves. They want to be spoon-fed on predigested opinions and this is the root source of endless trouble in a self-governing country.

The pond I have been struggling with — the one that won't hold water — is looking good this winter, because the ground froze so hard that seepage was reduced to a minimum.

It is my impression there is a magic cleanser for everything in the kitchen that formerly had to be brightened with elbow grease. They even make stuff to clean stoves.

If every student receiving scholarship help to get through college remembered his alma mater in his will, colleges would have no more problems about needy students. And if every citizen would take the same attitude toward the public education he received free of charge and cough up his gratitude cheerfully, there would be no school levies defeated at the polls.

Sometime when I think of it, I want to find out for sure what's in a B-1 vitamin capsule. I wonder every time one of the things sends back that odd taste after it has been swallowed.

If anyone asked me how to design a supermarket, I'd put in over-the aisle signs, so stupid husbands doing the family marketing in emergencies wouldn't have to turn into aisles of no interest while in pursuit of elusive items on a grocery list.

The reason basketball games used to be so exciting is that five minutes of close-contact scrimmage might precede each score. It was more like football, not so much like pinball.

Khrushchev's Blunder

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Ike Has Countered Russian's Statement

Dictator Khrushchev isn't scaring anybody in Washington with his blustering statement that any attempt by the Allies to break through to Berlin by land, sea, or air would be met by force.

David Lawrence

President Eisenhower has countered with the simple declaration that the United States and the Western powers will continue to carry out their "responsibilities" under the 1945 wartime agreement and that "it will be the other side, if there is going to be any force," which will have to use it "to block our carrying out our responsibilities."

These are serious words from the President of the United States. No further authority is needed from congress, moreover, to resist an attack on the American troops stationed in West Berlin or in the approaches to that city.

It is written in the North Atlantic Treaty, as ratified by the U. S. Senate, that any attack on a member state or its forces — which includes West Berlin — can be considered an attack on all the Western powers, including the United States. Congress has, therefore, already authorized the use of the armed forces of the United States to repel attack.

The President made it clear that the United States would not initiate any fighting. He said to his press conference:

"He (Khrushchev) must be talking about shooting to stop us from doing our duty. After all, that is what is going to happen if it happens.

We are not saying that we are going to shoot our way into Berlin. We say we are just going to go and continue carrying out our responsibilities to those people and the ones that we agreed to undertake way back in 1945. So that if we are stopped, it will be soebody else using force."

THE PRESIDENT performed a service to world peace by making it clear that the United States will not fail to resist any attack on the Western Allied military forces as they pursue their rights under the 1945 agreement. That agreement was adopted when the men of the armed forces of the United States and its Western Allies were completing the job of saving the Russian people from possible conquest by Hitler's armies.

It seems a brazen piece of ingratitude for the dictator in the Kremlin to demand now what West Berlin be given up to whomever the Moscow government says shall occupy it, thus disregarding the inter - allied agreement altogether. Certainly, unless consent is given by all the partners in the war, the territory of West Berlin should remain in its present status. Any attempt to alter that staus by force becomes an attack by the Soviet Union on the Western Allies. This would mean the beginning of a war, and it seems incredible that Dictator Khrushchev would take such a risk.

It may be that Khrushchev thinks the Western Allies will not stand together and would not risk a war. But that is the kind of miscalculation which the Communist leaders in Moscow should never make. For, if fighting breaks out in the vicinity of West Berlin, it could result in a revolution inside East Germany and in some other satellite countries as well as inside the Soviet Union itself. The peoples behind the Iron Curtain do not want war. That's why it is so important to make clear before all the world that it is the head of the soviet regime who today is deliberately planning to initiate war.

Some of the same menacing maneuvers were made by Red China just before opening a bombardment on Quemoy and Matsu a few months ago. But President Eisenhower and Secretary of state Dulles stood firm, and the Communists have not risked an attack on Formosa, which Congress has, by resolution, pledged the United States to defend.

THE UNITED STATES is not going to be bluffed by either Peiping or Moscow. To make sure the Communists understand this, it has been necessary, as Mr. Dulles once said, to be ready to go "to the brink of war."

This has been cynically referred to as "brinkmanship," but it works. It is a manifestation of resoluteness that prevents war. Vacillation, on the other hand, breeds way by encouraging the mistaken belief that one side will not fight if attacked. Then, when disillusionment comes, war is already under way. So it is much better to say in advance explicitly what will or will not be done in a given contingency.

The feeling in Washington is that the Soviets will not risk war but will talk about it in the hope of forcing surrender. Firmness and unity on the Allied side were never more important. This applies also to those well-intentioned members of Congress whose words, implying a readiness to make concessions, are taken abroad to be a sign of weakness.

This is one time above all others when the executive branch should do the talking and the legislative branch should, if it speaks at all, uphold the hands of the President and the secretary of state.

Front Royal Plan

By RAYMOND MOLEY

BILOXI, Miss.

Unlike Charlottesville and Norfolk, where private schools already existed to care for white children whose parents were unwilling to send them to integrated schools, Front Royal in Warren County, Virginia, had no such facilities.

It also had no Negro high school and was sending its 22 Negro students of high school grade to nearby communities for their education. However, it was building a new Negro high school last Septeber when Judge John Paul ordered the county school board to open on an integrated basis. Thereupon, the all-white high school was closed. An appeal to Judge Paul recentlly, to create a stay until next September, was refused. After the September closing, leading citizens of Front Royal formed what is called the Warren County Educational Foundation to provide instruction for the 780 white high school students.

This foundation is a plan which, so far as I know, is unique to continue education on a segregated basis.

The citizens' committee which created it solicited subscriptions at a small fee from local people and also receved contributions from sympathetic people in other counties and states. (The Internal Revenue Service as not yet ruled on the tax deductibility of these contributions.)

Support for the foundation became a very popular issue with the white people of the community. Local 371 of the Textile Workers' Union of America fully co-operated with the movement. It obtained voluntary pledges from its members to have weekly contributions checked off in the Viscos Corporation plant where they were employed.

High school students donated their baby-sitting money. The labor union donated its hall for high-school athletics. The Episcopalian, Methodst, and Baptist churches lent their parish houses for classes. Twenty-six of the 42 teachers in the closed Warren County High School resigned to serve the foundation's private classes.

A final plea to Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals failed to change Judge Paul's decision, and the high school was ordered to be opened on an integrated basis on Wednesday, Feb. 18. A total of 22 Negro teen-agers turned up to be enrolled. The regular teachers from the old school were mostly home economics and manual training instructors partly paid by federal funds.

The foundation has taken a poll of parents which indicated 591 to 5 in favor of continuing the private classes.

It will be months before the final result of this experiment can be appraised, but up to now public opinion has clearly shown its resistance to the federal court's interpretation of the Constitution.

Comments by a Former Resident

In your Feb. 5 editorial, "So Obvious It Will Bear Repeating," you point out so clearly that "prejudice in schools (southern integration) is not natural to children. They are not born with prejudice. They learn to feel prejudice under the tutelage of prejudiced parents who, in many cases, are made to feel more prejudice than is natural by rabble-rousing politicians . . ."

How true! It is hate that breeds wars.

Permit me, as a former Salem resident, to comment that I think The News' editorials are short, good and to the point. As a former councilman in Salem, I hope, too, that the police and firemen will get the raise in pay they have requested. They deserve it. I was one of the first to help establish their pension fund.

Man's Response Often Hampered

Civilization Causes Forced Temperance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The door opens, and into the board room stalks a saber-toothed tiger.

Does the vice president know how to cope with this situation?

Probably not. But his body would. It would start priming him for violent physical activity.

His psychological response would be the same as that of his caveman ancestors: blood rushes to the face, hair on the back of the neck stands up, adrenalin—making possible extraordinary physical effort—flows into the blood stream.

The saber-tooth won't walk into the board room. But put in his place the vice president's arch office rival, the man who perhaps is out for his job.

The reaction? The same: rush of blood, hair on end, adrenalin.

"His primitive response," says an expoert, "is to hit his rival over the head with a chair. But he can't. He has to just sit and take it.'

Man hasn't changed much, physiologically, since caveman days. Finding ways to help him cope with modern stresses is the goal of the Human Performance Laboratory at UCLA. There Dr. Laurence E. Morehouse and aides study reactions to crisis situations and try to work out solutions.

Take a jet pilot. When something goes wrong and he's faced with danger he, like the vice president, is primed for violence. Yet volence would ruin him. For his machine requires the most delicate guidance.

For everyday pressures, Dr. Morehouse advises:

"Play for time. Give these stress feelings time to peter out. Ask questions to stall for time until you can think clearly and act calmly.

"Then, later, use up these stresses with some sort of physical workout — handball, bowling, perhaps a steam bath. Otherwise, things tend to pile up."

Controversial Tax Program Installed in Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP)— Beginning this week virtually everybody in Massachusetts with a job will collect a smaller pay check.

That's because a newly enacted state law withholding personal income taxes went into effect Feb. 15.

But it will affect more than those who work for wages and salaries.

Each quarter, it will reach into the pockets of the self-employed and those living on unearned incomes. Such persons are faced with the knotty problem of estimating how much they will earn, or whether the stock they own will pay any dividends in the year ahead — and how much. If they guess too high, it will be many months before they can get the money back.

Adjustments on overpayments must come after income tax returns for 1959 are filed next year.

Meantime, there are other complications.

The withholding provision is retroactive to Jan. 1. Therefore, there will be double withholding deductions each pay day until the taxes in arrears are made up.

That's not all. On April 15, income taxpayers must plank down their Massachusetts income tax for last year.

If the taxpayer works in Massachusetts but lives in an adjoining state, he still has to pay. Considerable numbers of Massachusett worker have homes in Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire or Vermont.

A spot check showed some taxpayers thought the withholding principle would be a relief in solving the annual problem of finding the money for the state income tax.

But many other taxpayers were openly indignant. Some objected to the fact that within one calendar year they would have to turn over to the state two years' tax money. Some were suspicious that withholding would be a prelude to increased income taxation, as it was with Federal taxes. Some felt that retroactive taxation was illegal.

Travelers Club Program Envisions Future In 1999

Mrs. Lloyd Gordon presided at the regular meeting of the Travelers Club Tuesday afternoon at the Ruth Smucker House.

The program was opened by Mrs. Robert McCulloch Jr., who related incidents in the living habits of the John Future family in 1999, from the book, "Our Hopeful Future," by Victor Cohn.

Developments in electronics will change most of the housekeeping methods, she said. With electronic heating of homes, there will be no dust, hence little housecleaning.

Mr. Future will be whisked to his office miles away, giving him a little time to read his newspaper en route, Mrs. McCulloch concluded.

Mrs. David Cope presented 1999 pictures relating to agriculture, nscience, medicine and business. Due to the predicted increase in population in the future, science will step up growth of vegetables, fruits and meat products. Experiments are now being made to curtail food spoilage, which destroys 20 per cent before it reaches the table, she added.

Research in medicine will continue with amazing results, some of which we have experienced. The picture of 1999 sounds fantastic, but these predictions are based on scientific knowledge and belief in future development, she concluded.

Mrs. Harold Musser's paper was on "The Moon — Last Stand as a Romantic Agent." She explained that poems and quotations speak of the moon in feminine gender, but we are used to saying the man in the moon. She pointed out that temperatures vary from 25 degrees below zero to 25 degrees above zero, depending on which side of the moon the temperature is being recorded.

Coffee and "moon" cookies were enjoyed after the program.

A guest speaker will be featured at the March 3 meeting.

COLUMBIANA

Zellers Succeeds Harsh As County Road Head

COLUMBIANA — G. A. (Gay) Zellers of Columbiana has been appointed as the new county superintendent of state highways succeeding Edwin Harsh of Lisbon, a 30-year veteran in the post.

Zellers, who had been employed for the last 18 years at the National Rubber Machinery Co., will begin his new duties officially on March 2.

Zellers is a Democratic village councilman, now rounding out his second term in office. He had filed for re-election, but will withdraw from the race and resign from council because the position of highway superintendent apparently is incompatible with an elective office. The local Democratic party will name his successor on council and the candidate to run in his stead in the November election.

Zellers said the village solicitor has been checking all local angles of the appointment to determine if he might remain on council, but "it looks pretty certain that I won't be able to."

COLUMBIANA

Zellers Succeeds Harsh As County Road Head

COLUMBIANA — G. A. (Gay) Zellers of Columbiana has been appointed as the new county superintendent of state highways succeeding Edwin Harsh of Lisbon, a 30-year veteran in the post.

Zellers, who had been employed for the last 18 years at the National Rubber Machinery Co., will begin his new duties officially on March 2.

Zellers is a Democratic village councilman, now rounding out his second term in office. He had filed for re-election, but will withdraw from the race and resign from council because the position of highway superintendent apparently is incompatible with an elective office. The local Democratic party will name his successor on council and the candidate to run in his stead in the November election.

Zellers said the village solicitor has been checking all local angles of the appointment to determine if he might remain on council, but "it looks pretty certain that I won't be able to."

the shores of Lake Washington in Seattle.

Just three years ago he was a respected millionaire businessman, international president of the Teamsters Union—considered the largest in the country—and a vice president of the AFL-CIO.

Today he is under the shadow of two convictions. Beck was sentenced to not more than 15 years in prison after a 1957 conviction for grand larceny in the embezzlement of $1,900 from the sale of a union-owned Cadillac. The State Supreme Court is scheduled to hear his appeal next March.

Beck's big trouble began when he appeared before the Senate Labor-Management Committee in 1957 and invoked the Fifth Amendment more than 150 times. He said then he could probably clear everything up with a few minutes in the court of law.

Warning on Purchasing Insurance Is Issued

An Oklahoma City, Okla., insurance firm soliciting policies in this district is not licensed to do business in Ohio, the state superintendent of insurance at Columbus said today.

Edward S. Stowell warned residents against dealing with the firm, the Prudential Life Casualty Insurance Co., or others not licensed in Ohio.

Stowell said the department of insurance can protect residents only in cases where a firm is licensed to do business in this state.

Ohio code protects residents by requiring licensed insurance firms to be financially stable, stipulates uniform policies and prohibits any misrepresentation on benefits under the policy, Stowe said.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

All the little Caesars will have reason to remember the Ides of March. For, within a fortnight, the national crime syndicate will be surrounded by the one federal agency with which the mob has not yet tangled — just as in the '30s Al Capone suddenly discovered there was a government bureau which could jail him just as effectively as a sheriff who hadn't been fixed.

Victor Riesel

In the '30s, it was the income tax bureau which hit the mob like a black twister out of fast darkening skies.

Now it's Victor Hanson's Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Dept. At least seven of its special Federal Grand Juries have been working secretly on the application of anti-trust laws to the Apalachin type of conspiracy. Within two weeks some of these grand juries — sitting on a line from New York to Los Angeles — will bring in indictments.

For the first time the crime syndicate is caught flatfooted — unaware, uncomprehending the full trip-hammer force of the anti-trust laws just as the swashbuckling disdainful Capone mob at first failed to understand what those busy tax boys could do. The pencil can be mightier than the submachine gun.

THIS GOES for the mobs which control unions as well as businesses. These unions, the big tough ones run by the musclemen as well as the small paper outfits operating out of desk drawers, are exempt from anti-trust laws only if they don't conspire with employers to fix wages, hours and prices. Once they do that — as they did in the juke box field, for example — their exemption goes out the window like a goon who breaks the underworld code.

The public, too, is unaware of the anti trust laws' power. Maximum penalties — and there have been several won by Mr. Hansen's lawyers recently — are $50,000 and-or one year in jail for each count. You can run up many counts. In past months, judges have passed out just those sentences to some violators.

Successful anti-trust actions could force the crime syndicate to dismantle its businesses in every field. The court could decide also that these convicted could not go back into that business again.

Federal judges could direct a union to discharge its officials. Crooked unioneers could be ordered never again to step into a union headquarters or make contact or hold office.

If a union refused to dump its leaders, the labor outfit could be fined heavily or even dissolved. Administrators could be put in to run mob unions as well as businesses.

FURTHERMORE, the courts could go beyond this by interpreting the anti-trust violations as defiance of the Hobbs Act, which also is little understood. This law's interpretation of a racket is the use of violence or even threats, to extort money or force competitors into disadvantageous positions.

Mr. Hansen would not confirm or discuss any grand jury actions. He merely told me tersely:

"We are going to mesh the Anti-Trust Division into the over-all crime fight by the Justice Dept. In this division we have been very carefully looking into the racket angle for a year. There are possibilities in many areas where we can proceed criminally."

With the testimony of one of New York's ace police officials, Lt. James Mooney, of Commissioner Steve Kennedy's crack Central Intelligence Bureau, the anti-trust field is opened wide.

What Lt. Mooney said, in effect, was that the Nov. 14, 1957, Apalachin underworld cook-out was not really a crime convention but a criminal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Lt. Mooney said that the underworld can order a member's death, have him sit still for an appeal and then levy a $10,000 fine instead. If this is so, then there is a criminal conspiracy in restraint of all the trades represented at the "Second Government" conclave.

The crime syndicat is in big business and from now on this type of big business is the Anti-Trust Division's business.

Best-Dressed Men

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—America's best dressed men today aren't its movie stars or television idols—but its business executives.

The tired buiness man got this surprise pat on his well-attired back from Pat Caruso, a tailor.

"The business executive today is highly style-aware," said Caruso. "Years ago he would wear anything. Now he knows exactly what he wants. Some even draw sketches of the styles they prefer."

Professional athletes also are more clothes-conscious, and the best dressed among them are the jockeys, who also rate as the wealthiest of athletes. The reason: Most jockeys have to wear custom garments or buy children's wear.

"But very few people in public life dress well," said Caruso. He added: "What can you do with a politician?

'However, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon are exceptions."

"What about Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller?"

A look of sorrow crossed Caruso's face but he maintained a discreet silence. It is an open secret among custom tailors that New York's multimillionaire chief executive patronizes a store featuring ready made clothing.

The custom industry now suffers more from a shortage of fine tailors than customers, Caruso says.

"It takes 10 to 15 years to become a good tailor," said Caruso "I first picked up the needle at the age of 9 in my father's shop in Italy. In this country nobody wants to work that young. You can't go to college and then start to be a tailor.

"We have to import our tailors."

Here are afew other observations he made:

"In Europe they laugh at the Ivy League look. They say it looks like it was sprayed on.

"A man can be well-dressed with a wardrobe of a dozen suits. But he has to buy three or four a year to keep it up.

"The things a man needs most to look well in clothes are a good tailor and a flat belly.

"The British used to be the world's best dressed men. But most Englishmen today aren't well-dressed. They have fine fabrics but not enough good tailors.

"The best-dressed men in the world now are probably wealthy South Americans. They are the male peacocks today.

"Most doctors don't dress well. Their cars look better than their clothes."

Tests Prove Fluorides Halt Tooth Decay

(Fifth of a Series)

There is no vaccine that protects children from tooth decay. But there is a method that can prevent up to 65 per cent of decay.

This method is the fluoridation of water, adjusting the fluorrine content of public water supplies to the optimum amount, one part per million parts of water. Children who drink such water from birth have considerably fewer cavities than youngsters who are denied this advantage.

In the small villages and rural areas that do not have public water supplies, dentists can apply fluoride treatments directly to children's teeth.

Studies have shown that such topical application of fluorides reduces new tooth decay, on the average, by as much as 40 per cent.

Nature's own experiments first proved the value and safety of fluoridated water. In fact, some natural water supplies contain as much as 5-10 parts of fluorine per million parts of water. While this excess causes no bodily harm, it does cause stained or "Mottled" teeth.

Investigators trying to learn the cause of this staining were surprised to find that persons with mottled teeth had been less than the usual amount of decay. Further investigation showed the cause of the staining and the resistance to decay to be the same—fluoride. It also indicated the amount of fluoride—one part per million—that would produce resistance to decay without mottling. Fluorides are in Salem's water supply.

After exhaustive studies had been made, cities began adding fluoride to water supplies deficient in that element. Th life-time cost per indivdual, it was found, about equals the cost of having one tooth filled.

This method of reducting tooth decay is a real bargain, as 97 per cent of Americans suffer from decay at some time in their lives. About one-sixth of the money spent for family health and hospital services is sent for dental care.

Older children and adults may possibly gain some benefits from fluoridation. But the chief beneficiaries are the children who drink fluoridated water from birth. Their resistance to decay will be lifelong.

Tigers Support 13-5 Slate; Possess Good Shots, Speed

Salem's Quakers will be up against no patsy when they battle the Newton Falls Tigers Saturday night in their first Class AA sectional tournament game at the Youngstown South High field house.

Gene Zorn's club is currently on a five-game win streak and reigns as Trumbull County Class AA champions. Their record is an impressive 13-5.

The game will start at 6:30 p.m. and will be the first of a triple-header. The second tilt at 7:45 p.m. is between Youngstown South and Girard.

Should Salem beat Newton Falls they would play the winner of the Girard-South game Feb. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

The final game tomorrow night at 9 is between winless Austintown Fitch and Leavittsburg.

There will be no reserved seats. General admission tickets may be obtained at the door which opens at 5 p.m. or at Fishers and Heddlestons here. Adult tickets sell for $1 while student tickets, obtainable only at the door, are 50 cents.

Schoendienst Recovers After Lung Operation

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Red Schoendienst was reported in good condition today after an operation expected to speed his recovery from tuberculosis but it remained unlikely he can play baseball this season.

The operation is not an unusual one for tubercular patients. The diseased portion of his right lung was removed in a three-hour operation.

Dr. William A. Werner one of Red's physicians, said everything went according to plan.

Jack Kramer's Pros May Aid Olmedo

NEW YORK (AP) — Alejandro Olmedo said today he plans to call on Jack Kramer's pros, so instrumental in his Australian triumphs, to help hone him in shape for the Wimbleton Tennis Championship this summer.

"School will take so much of time that I will have little chance to play or practice," the 22-year-old Peruvian said. "I will practice with Pancho Gonzalez and Pancho Segura every chance I get. They are a big help to my game."

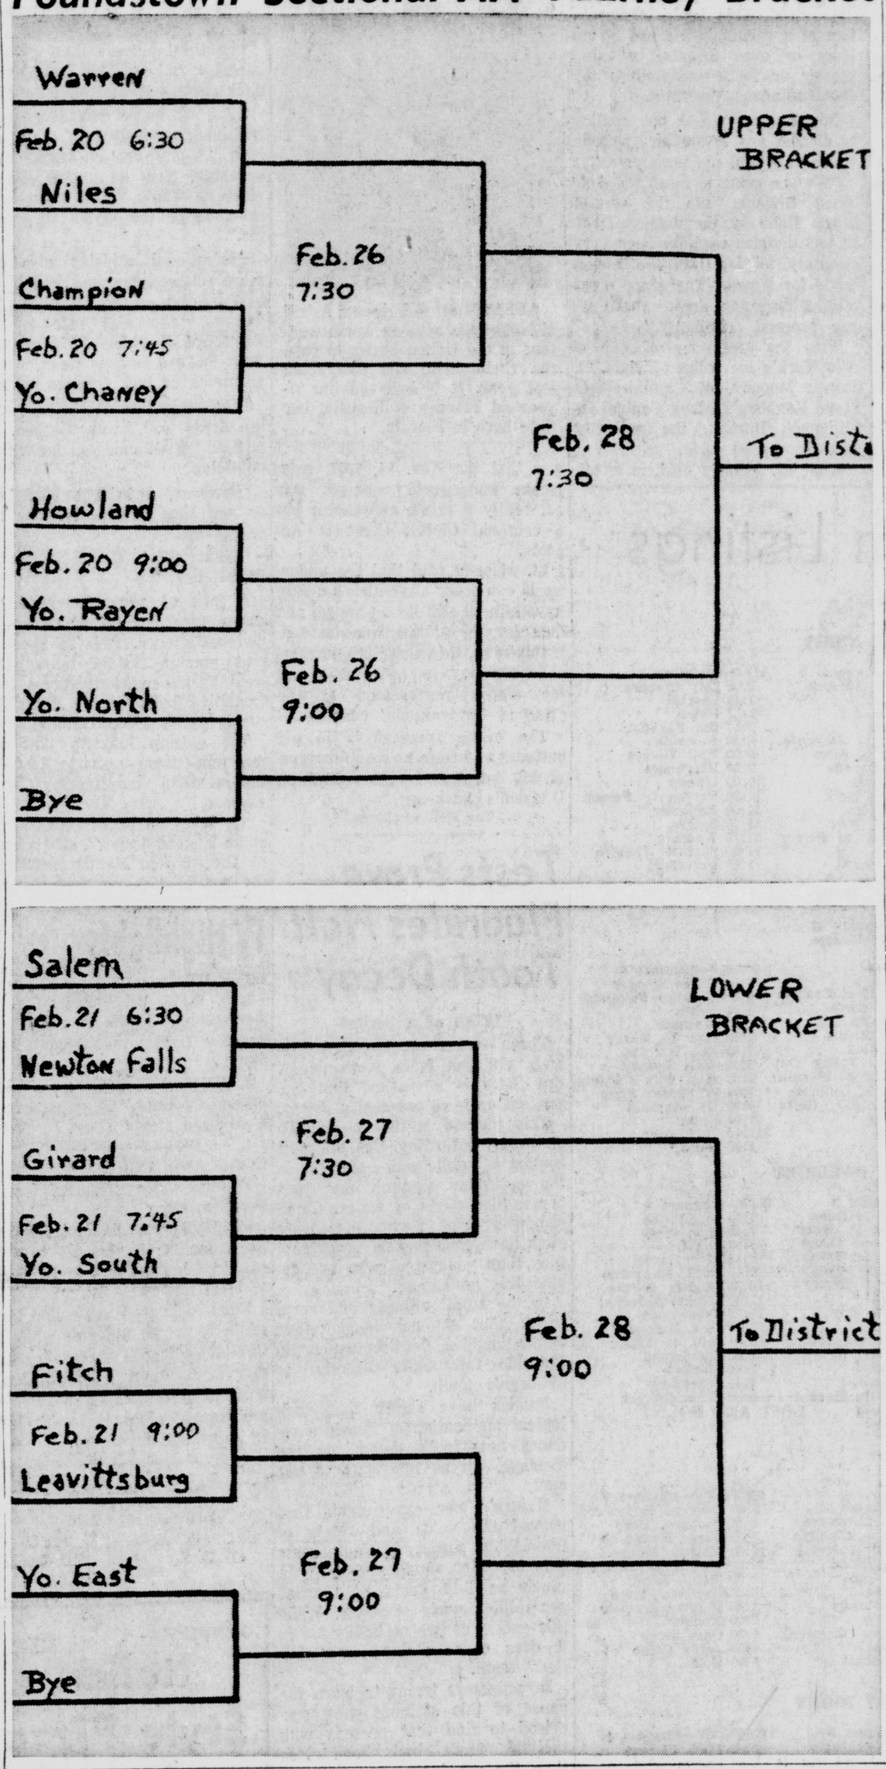

These two pros, plus promoter Jack Kramer, whipped the pride of the Incas into the shape in which he almost single handedly won the Davis Cup and later took the Australian national title.

Olmedo made his debut on hardwood here Thursday night in the national indoor championships and won over Henry Jungle Jr., of Colorado Springs, an Air Force officer, 6-4, 6-3. Olmedo played after a delayed cross - country plane flight from Los Angeles with little benefit of sleep.

Olmedo will have to be better tonight if he survives his second-round duel Julius Heldman, who eliminated Kosei Kamo, Japanese Davis Cup star, 6-2, 6-3.

Barry MacKay, Olmedo's Davis Cup mate from Dayton, Ohio, defeated Mike Franks of Los Angeles, 24-22, 4-6, 63.

Younastown Sectional AA Tourney Bracket

Sports Sketches

By GORDON ARNDT

One of the spectators at the Salem-Girard game last Tuesday was Harry Lancaster, assistant basketball coach to Adolph Rupp at Kentucky. When questioned about the high school basketball tournament in the Blue Grass state he said all teams start from scratch on an equal basis. There is no distinction between Class AA and Class A as here in the Buckeye State, he added.

Lancaster said there are 16 teams which play at the same time in the state finals compared to four in Ohio. These "Sweet 16" emerge from an equal number of districts which are sub-divided into 64 sections. He went on to say that it is usually a "small school" that wins the state championship.

Lancaster also elaborated on the Wildcats' game against Mississippi State. "The only way a student got in the game for M.S.U. was if he was equipped with a cow bell," he said. In contrast he mentioned that U.K. students clap their hands most of the time in instigating a rally or in an effort to pep up their team.

Rupp's right hand man, who has been at the Lexington university since 1841 save two years in the Navy, revealed that racing is still the champ in Kentucky. He said football games in the early fall are played at night so that racing fans can "watch the ponies" during the afternoon.

THREE GAMES will be played tonight in the upper bracket of the Youngstown Class AA sectional tournament at South field house. Warren and Niles tangle at 6:30, Champion and Chaney at 7:45 and Austintown Fitch and Leavittsburg at 9.

United Local will play Fairfield-Waterford Saturday night at 8 in the Beaver Local gym for the Columbiana County Class A title with the winner advancing to sectional play in Canton.

The Monday Division all-stars of the city basketball league will play the Wednesday Division all-stars March 9. The 10-man teams were determined in voting conducted by the coaches and league officials. Duck DeJane will coach the Wednesday stars and Gordon Arndt the Monday stars. The respective teams will be announced the night of the city league championship conest. The five players on each all-star team that receive the highest amount of total points in the voting will be awarded trophies. They'll be presented following completion of the all-star game which will start at 8:30 p.m. It should be made clear that the trophies are being given on the basis of performances during the regular season and not on the all-star tilt itself.

HARRY BAIRD, former Quaker ace and later scoring kingpin at Mt. Union College, is expected to re-enter the Alliance school this fall. He has one more year of eligibility.

Ed Knox of Salem has turned professional golfer. This spring he will join another Salemite, Dick Harris, at the Minot Country Club in Minot, N.D.

Carl Capel, secretary of the Boosters Club, was an army buddy of Paul Dietzel, coach of the year and mentor of Louisiana State's national football champions.

The Quakers will no doubt set another scoring record when they play Newton Falls tomorrow night in their first tourney game. The team has tallied 1,405 points in 18 games this year and are just 55 points away from setting a new season team high. The present high is 1,459 set last year in 21 contests.

Middletown, Hamilton to Meet For Last Time in Long Series

CINCINNATI (AP)—Barring a possible tournament meeting, one of Ohio's great high school basketball rivalries reaches the end of the road here tonight, at least in its present form.

Over the years, the neighboring Butler County cities of Hamilton and Middletown have had only one public high school each.

But the present Hamilton High School will close after this school year.

Next year, there will be two public high schools in Hamilton—Taft and Garfield—so tonight's encounter winds up the traditional battles between the Middies and the Big Blue for the Hamilton-Middletown "championship."

The rivalry has been so intense that since the Cincinnati Garden was built in 1949 most of their regularly scheduled contests with each other have been played here in a sometimes futile effort to take care of the crowds.

The Garden will be the scene of tonight's game.

The rivalry has been bitter in all sports, of course, but it has reached its peak in basketball. Between them, the Middies and the Big Blue have accounted for 10 state championships. Middletown won in 1944-46-47-52-53-56-57, Hamilton in 1937-49-54.

Hamilton high school opened in 1912. It was built for 1,200 students and now has 1,800. When the two new schools open next fall the student body will be about equally divided between them.

The history of the Big Blue is filled with names of outstanding basketball players. One of the most recent stars was Alex (Boo) Ellis, now playing with the pro Minneapolis Lakers. Others are Spud Hornsby, Don Nuxhall, Phil Lillard, Alex Ellis and Bill Wilks.

Warren Scholer played on Hamilton's 1937 state championship team and then coached the state champs of 1949 and 1954. He now is an assistant coach at Bowling Green State University.

Dick Dallmer of Norwood, Don Barger of Dayton Fairview and Don Knodel at Marion Harding are among the present high school coaches who played at Hamilton.

The current basketball season is a bit unusual in that neither the Middies nor the Big Blue is rated among the top contenders for the Class AA championship.

Middletown with a 14-3 record was rated 11th in this week's Associated Press poll while Hamilton, with a 13-4 mark, wasn't ranked. One of the Middie victories was a 58-54 overtime decision in a game with Hamilton here earlier in the season.

Fireside Inn, Herrons Play Tonight At 7

Tonight at 7 in the Memorial Building Fireside Inn will play Herron Transfer for the second half championship of the Monday Division in the city basketball league. Each club ended second half play with a 6-1 record.

The winner of tonight's game will qualify to play Marks Landing (first half winner) for the championship of the Monday Division.

Over in the Wednesday circuit the two clubs who will battle for supremacy are Bennetts Greenhouse and Farmers National Bank, second and first half champs, respectively.

The playoffs in each division will take place next Monday and Wednesday evenings and Thursday if necessary.

The championship playoffs between the two division winners will come off March 2 and March 4 and March 5 if necessary.

MSU Eyes Revenge Against Boilermakers

By The Associated Press

Michigan State's bid for its first undisputed Big Ten basketball crown will get a big lift Saturday if the Spartans defeat the hot Purdue Boilermakers.

The game in East Lansing, Mich., tops a full round of conference action.

Purdue, winner of five of its last six starts after a miserable beginning, is one of three teams rating a chance to catch MSU.

The Spartans, betaten by Purdue 85-81 Feb. 7, are 8-2 in the standings and lead the chase by two games with four yet to play. Purdue and Indiana share second place with 6-4 records and Michigan is fourth with 5-4.

Indiana is at Illinois (5-5) for a Saturday afternoon date and Minnesota (4-5) is at Wisconsin (1-8) the same time for a regionally televised game.

In other night attractions, Michigan is at Northwestern (4-6) and Ohio State (4-5) at Iowa (5-5).

MSU could cinch at least a tie for the title if it defeats Purdue and if Illinois downs Indians and Northwestern takes Michigan. Illinois upset Indiana earlier on the Hoosiers' floor 89-83 and Northwestern did the same to Michigan 83-78.

Wilfie Greaves Meets Fullmer In 10-Rounder

NEW YORK (AP) — Confident, young Wilfie Greaves believes he has improved enough in two years to reverse his loss to former middleweight champion Gene Fullmer.

The 23-year-old Canadian champ now fighting out of Detroit, will get the chance to square accounts with the 27-year-old Mormon from West Jordan, Utah, in the televised (NBC, 10 p.m. EST) 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Fullmer is the 12-5 favorite.

"I've improved 100 per cent since I fought him last (Jan. 28, 1957)," said Greaves, a poised, handsome blond native of Edmonton, Alta. "I had only 16 fights when I fought Gene. Since that fight, I've learned to put my punches together and get more power behind them. I think I can beat him now for No. 14."

He has a winning streak of 13, started 14 months ago. Fullmer has won eight in a row.

"He's a good kid," said Fullmer. "He gave me a real good workout that first time. But I've got too much at stake to lose to him. I'm still hoping to get another shot at the middleweight title and I know I'll never get the chance if I lose this one. I won't."

Salem, Columbiana Meet For Junior Tourney Championship

Salem's eighth grade basketball team coached by Tom Cope took on the Columbiana eighth graders this afternoon at 5 in the finals of the Sixth Annual Salem Junior High Basketball Tournament after the young Clippers and little Quakers both emerged winners in their respective semi-final matches yesterday at the junior high floor.

The Quakers won over East Palestine 33-21 while Columbiana beat Alliance State St.

At 4 this afternoon Alliance tangles wth East Palestine in the consolation contest.

The rebounding of Nate Cope and Bob King was the big difference in Salem's win. The Quakers led 13-11 at the half and 20-15 after three periods. However, in the last period with Cope and King rebounding, and Dick Ehrhart scoring, they pulled away to a comfortable margin. Spearheading this attack was the all-around floor play of Rick Platt.

Ehrhart scored 11 for Salem while Platt had nine. Cope tossed in six, Lodge five and King two for Salem. For the losers, Robinson, Bush and Watt had six each, Seiter two and Noel one.

Murphy dropped in 23 points and Ward 15 to pace the Columbiana team to its win over Alliance. Arbuckle and Perrine had three eacr for the Clippers too. For the losers Tesha had 11, Diser eight, Dawson, six and Borany and Rastetter five each.

Columbiana had quarter leads of 6-4, 18-15 and 27-24.

Denver Snaps Utah Win String At Eleven, Eyes NCAA Berth

By The Associated Press

The University of Denver usually is associated with the best in college hockey and skiing. Now the Pioneers may come up with a championship basketball team and get into the NCAA tourney for the first time to help celebrate the state of Colorado centennial. The Pioneers delighted a howling Crowd of 2,900 Thursday night at the Denver fieldhouse as they snapped Utah's 11-game winning streak 67-62 and moved within half a game of the first place Utes in the Skyline Conference. Denver now has a conference record of 8-2 compared to Utah's 8-1. The Pioneers have four conference games left and Utah five.

The game highlighted a slim national program.

NYU beat Villanova 78-60 and St. Johns (NY) defeated Niagara 87-78 in a doubleheader before 10,125 at New York's Madison Square Garden. Butler, which beat Notre Dame Monday in three overtimes, had its seven-game winning streak snapped by Indiana State 88-87 in two overtimes.

Belmont Abbey's 18-game winning streak went by the boards at the hands of Presbyterian 56 53. Wheaton chalked up its 55th straight in the College Conference of Illinois by drubbing Elmhurst 81-54. In other games Massachusetts scored its second upset of the week, a 68-65 victory over Boston College, and Montana walloped New Mexico 84-59 in a Skyline Conference fray.

Jim Peay, a 6-2 junior from Rye, N.Y., sparked Denver to its must win over Utah. He scored 30 points on 12 field goals and six free throws and snared 15 rebounds.

NYU's hopes for a bid to the NIT soared after the Violets drubbed Villanova, already picked for the tourney. Tom Sanders was high with 28 points and Cal Ramsey collected 13 to become the highest scorer in NYU history with 1,105 pionts. St. Johns, led by Al Seiden, with 31 points, and Tony Jackson, with 27, piled up a 70-56 lead before Niagara made a futile rally.

Indiana State beat Butler on a free throw by Warren Ross that broke an 87-87 tie. The regulation game ended 74-74 and the first overtime 80-80. It was good foul shooting, too, that gave Massachusetts its victory over Boston College. Curt Teeter flipped in three charity tosses in the final minute.

Yankees Not Over-Confident For Defense of League Crown

By CASEY STENGEL
New York Yankees

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—The New York Yankees were good enough to win by 11 games and then, after being down three games to one in the series, came back to win three in a row to regain the world championship.

Since the Yankees of today are the same club I guess you know the club as well as I do.

Now don't let these first two paragraphs fool you. We aren't just sitting back getting over-confident. That's not the Yankee way. We led the league by 17 games last Aug. 2. But we played under .500 ball the last two months of the season.

Our defense, both outfield and infield, left a lot to be desired. Our pitching staff was unhealthy. Whitey Ford, Don Larsen and Tom Sturdivant had arm difficulties. Ryne Duren was beaned, then suffered some knee trouble and Sturdivant sustained a badly spiked heel. Our long lead saved us.

Now we have reason to believe most of these troubles are over with. We have a lot of fine young prospects coming up who may win places on this year's club, if any of the veterans falter. If the kids on the farms are ready, they'll play ball with us next season.

I know the other clubs haven't been sitting idly by waiting for the Yankees to collapse.

Detroit and Cleveland, in particular, look stronger. The Tigers, always tough for the Yankees, have improved the depth of their pitching staff with the additions of Ray Narleski and Don Mossi. Billy Martin and Jim Piersall are bound to help Cleveland.

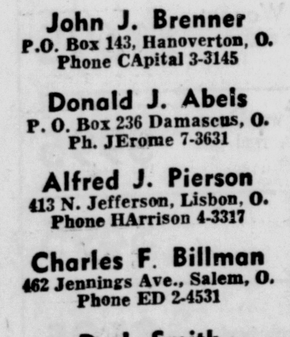

Chicago came up fast, while we were slumping last season. Boston, too, will be tough.

Baltimore, Kansas City and Washington will continue to make trouble. Those clubs won 27 games from us while losing 39.

While I'm concerned with the improvement of the other clubs, I'm not apologizing for the Yankee squad. We've got a lot of infielders from last year plus a fine second baseman in Cletis Boyer.

We have a happy position behind the plate. Elston Howard developed rapidly last year. Yogi Berra is far from through and will see plenty of service behind the plate, possibly at first base and in the outfield. Young Johnny Blanchard appears ready to stick with the team as a utility catcher.

I hope to give the Yankee fans another championship club in 1959.

Hole Collection To Be Shown In June.

As a public service, we have been punching extra holes in the belts of Salem's lucky men who lose weight. We, of course, do not charge for this service but we do take possession of the hole piece. Being of Scotch parentage, I found it quite impossible to throw away these holes, and began my collection.
With the U.S. employment situation what it is today, and the consequent decrease in the American girth, our collection should reach a sufficient magnitude by June to warrant a public showing of this rare collection.

Clear Weather Promised for Ski Tourney

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The weatherman came up with a promise of blue skies for Saturday's start of the North American Ski Championships, all important Olympic dress rehearsal in the initial qualifying show for U. S. Olympic hopefols.

Competitors from 14 nations took full advantage of Thursday's sunshine to ski, skate on the new quartermile speed oval and jump off the mammoth 80 meter (262 foot) jumping hill.

The climate was such that Willy Schaeffler, director of Olympic ski events, planned to take another look today at the men's downhill course off 9,100-foot Squaw Peak to see if it can be put in shape.

The heavy snow — 104 inches in 11 days — has forced the men's downhill to be switched to the giant slalom mountain, KT22. If necessary, two runs off that 8,100-foot peak will be made with the best combined time the winner.

Picnickers Flocked to Beaver Creek Area Back In '80s

Shelton's Grove Once Popular Spot

By JAMES MURPHY

When the new Route 45 project south of Salem is completed, it will pass through what was once the most popular playground in the county.

Long before the municipal park systems of the present day, this area along Little Beaver Creek was a famous picnic grounds comparable to Youngstown's Mill Creek Park today.

Although well patronized during the '80's the Grove was at its height during the years around the turn of the century when americans began "going wild" over boats. There was no Guilford Lake and the large millpond created by Teegarden's grist mill was the largest body of water around. Consequently, there were usually from 10 to 20 boats docked at Shelton's landing.

Built by Levi Blackledge in 1804, this water-powered mill was the principal industry during the town's declining years even though this area used to be an important mining community due to the rich supply of coal and iron ore found near the town.

Fondation stones are all that remain of the mill bu a short walk upstream from the covered bridge will soon bring you to the abutments of the dam. A few of the rotting timbers still remain in the creek.

At the edge of the creek directly behind the Salem Motorcycle Club thre is a large sandstone boulder with several interesting petroglyphs or Indian rock carvings on it. These carvings have been under water for nearly 150 years so there seems to be no reason to doubt their genuineness. Two arrows are easily discernible, as is what appears to be a tent or wigwam. The caricature of a human figure is more faintly seen.

There is a good chance of finding arrowheads and other relics in the newly cleared land along the Lisbon Road as it crosses Beaver Creek. Frank Simmons has some beautiful Spearheads that he found here.

SALEM PEOPLE flocked to Shelton's Grove by the carload years ago to attend the annual Harvest Home picnics, family reunions, and dances held in the old dance hall, which is the only one of the many buildings that has not fallen down. There was a carousel as well as many other concessions which made it the ideal spot for a family outing. Around 1926, Samuel Shelton sold his land and the name changed from Shelton's Grove to Eagleton's Glen.

As the automobile came into vogue, it became easy to travel farther from home. Fewer and fewer groups came to the Glen and it was eventually abandoned.

Boating had been discouraged for many years because of such tragedies as the drowning of the young Phillips sisters, Josephine and Mary, in 1894. When their boat overturned, the boy who was rowing swam to the bank but neither of the girls could make it.

AFTER THE DAM, gave way for lack of repair, there was little reason to come since most of the amusement stands had already left. When Mr. and Mrs. Paul Driscoll bought the land it was well overgown with weeds and shrubbery.

Family picnics are still occasionally held at the ghost town of Teegarden and there will usually be someone fishing if the water isn't too muddy. Many people make it the objective of a summer evening's drive or for a quiet walk along the stream.

Leader of Minority Against Tax Proposal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio House Minority Leader Roger Cloud (R-Logan) doesn't think Gov Michael V. DiSalle's tax proposal would work.

The Democratic governor has suggested that the state let counties handle the collection and distribution of sales and utility excise taxes.

Cloud, saying he was speaking for House Republicans, said the proposal would be "unworkable and completely disruptive of the existing local government and school financing programs," especially in smaller counties.

DiSalle said that by allowing the counties to collect and distribute the taxes, the state could save two million dollars a year in administrative costs.

Beating, Killing Created By Vivid Imaginations

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Here's what a pair of vivid imaginations can do to a set of facts.

Two 10-year-old boys rushed to police in suburban Darby. They said they saw four men beat a man in a white apron, throw him in the trunk of a car and drive off.

A little police checking brought out the facts. First, there were only two men, Angelo De Natale, 23, a mechanic, and his shop foreman, John Romanchick, 33. Second, they hadn't tossed a fist in anger.

Third, they were road-testing a customer's car and De Natale crawled into the trunk to check for noises.

DAMAGE SUITS FILED

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Damage suits totaling $310,000 have been filed in Common Pleas Court here by two Timken Roller Bearing Co. employes. They charge they were assaulted and injured by strikers when they tried to enter the firm's plant here Aug. 20. Frank Kelso Jr. of Westerville and Russell Temple of Columbus named as defendants the United Steel Workers of America, the union's Local 2173 and 24 union representatives.

VOTE FOR STRIKE

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — Workers at Ford Motor Co.'s assembly plant here voted 588 to 70 in favor of a strike Thursday, but a union spokesman said any walkout is at least two weeks away. The strike vote by members of the United Automobile Workers Local 425 was taken, a union spokesman said, after "numerous grievances . . under the heading of health, safety and production standards."
